THE RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.

Stray Shells.

The Japanese made a fatal mistake when they began the war. Russia will not permit herself to be beaten. Japanese steamers erroneously counted on the intervention of other Powers in the war. Such intervention Russia will not allow. — Vydomost, St. Petersburg.

Before gaining Port Arthur from the land side, if, indeed, they are destined at some time or other to take it from that quarter, the Japanese will be obliged to overcome such obstacles as will possibly make them recoil from an attack on land in the same way that they have already recoiled from the attack from the sea. — Russ, St. Petersburg.

Puffed up with a pride in their naval exploits, which had reached such a height that Admiral Togo had already invited one of his English friends to breakfast with him at Port Arthur, the Japanese have now received a bitter lesson, which will sober their self-conceit and instil in them an indefinite feeling of dread when facing our valiant Russian sailors. — Gazeta, St. Petersburg.

CAPT. RINDER EXONERATED.

Captain J. H. Rinder, master of the new Pacific liner Mongolia, was exonerated from all blame in the matter of the grounding of his ship on March 6th while off Pernambuco, on the coast of Brazil. After conducting a thorough investigation, United States Local Inspectors of Steamships O. F. Bulles and John K. Bulger submitted the following decision to Captain John Birmingham, Supervising Inspector for the First District of California: "From testimony taken in our investigation of this case we find that the steamship Mongolia, J. H. Rinder, master, from Norfolk, Va., to San Francisco, Cal., was running along the coast in order to verify the chronometer. At 3:33 p.m. March 6th the vessel struck on a reef or shoal. The weather was clear, the wind light and a smooth sea. Soundings taken around the vessel showed five fathoms near the bow, five and a half fathoms on each side amidships and eight fathoms aft. The tide was about half flood; vessel was drawing twenty-seven feet forward and twenty-eight feet aft. At 4:23 p.m. the vessel floated. The following bearings were taken at the time the vessel was aground: Scallope point, N. 29 W.; Ulinda light house, S. 43 W.; town. By the chart the bearings locate the ship in fifteen fathoms of water and four miles outside of the five-fathom line of soundings along the land. There are no indications on the chart of a reef or shoal water in this vicinity. After a careful consideration of the evidence in this case we have to exonerate Captain J. H. Rinder from blame in connection with the grounding of the steamship Mongolia on March 6, 1904. The vessel was examined in dry dock on her recent arrival at this port and the damage to her hull found to be nominal; her propeller blades were bent." — S. P. Chronicle.

Killed by a Lion.

Further particulars of the death of Brecht-Major A. W. S. Ewing, son of Colonel J. Ewing, of Dunfermline, show that the Major, hearing that a man and a pony had been killed by a lion some twenty miles from his headquarters, went out to endeavour to shoot the animal. Whilst on his way, with another officer, the lion suddenly appeared out of a grass and scrub thicket, at a distance of only about twenty yards. Major Ewing's companion fired, but only wounded the beast, who came straight on. The two officers endeavoured to jump aside as he sprang, but Major Ewing caught his foot on a stump and fell, dropping his rifle, and in a moment the lion was upon him, tearing his leg, a severing both arteries, and otherwise terribly mauling him. The major's companion fired four shots before finally killing the lion, but too late to save Major Ewing, who died five hours later, after suffering great agony.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The wave of the sneakthief's overnight operations, which, across about the Macdonnell Road, is moving west. Several attempts at burglary, more or less successful, have been made upon houses in Conduit Road, Seymour Terrace and Elliot Terrace. About 3 o'clock in the morning is the usual time for these unlawful enterprises, and it may be inferred that our defenders on the road are then not so wide awake as they might be. The robberies in the houses of Mr F. Smyth and Mr J. W.
Bollas are now added to by another.
Mr E. W. Mitchell's house was entered and robbed between 2.30 and 3.30 this morning. A carriage clock, which was seen by the occupant of the house to be all right at half-past two, was found to be clean gone an hour afterwards. It is not an unfair question to ask how it is the Police fail to stop these midnight thieves either before or after their thefts. There is not the slightest doubt that the burglars gang now running so freely on the higher levels are most successfully eluding the Police, and we are afraid the conclusion must follow that the Force as at present constituted is not equal to the performance of the duties which the community expect it to do. It may be absolutely necessary to re-institute the night-pass system, so as to give the Police powers to arrest suspicious midnight prowlers. Or it may become desirable for householders to engage private watchmen, as in the good old days, to protect their property; but, considering the large sum which our so-called policing costs the Colony, this extra outlay would be a hardship on the householders. Something certainly ought to be done to remedy the present state of things. One or other of the gang will probably get shot before long, if this thieving goes on.

The Hon. Gershom
BRAUTYF THE Stewart intends to ask PRAYA some timely questions at the next meeting of the Legislative Council, and if the mere fact of asking the questions will awaken the Government to a sense of their duty to the people and the Colony he will deserve well of the public generally. Mr Stewart practically asks if the Government will undertake the beautification of the water front as much as lies in their power—or, at least, if they will take advantage of the opportunities afforded them at present to do so. There is a little plot west of the Club—which Mr Stewart directly refers to—which will make a delightful garden for residents, and visitors to sit in and enjoy the cool of the evenings or retreat from the heat of the sun beneath shady trees, but which is now an unsightly space for the storage of everything but that which is beautiful. This could be converted into a miniature Eden without much trouble or expense. Then there is Blake Pier. There is much scope there for Governmental energy in the direction of doing something to contribute to the pleasure and convenience of the people. They could lengthen the pier; they could erect a band rotunda; and they could place seats at intervals for the weary to rest upon. At present people compelled to wait for launches have to stand who-ther they are weary or not. In a climate like this such should not be the case.
Police are always on duty at the Pier and they could see that the majority of the seats were reserved for Europeans. In Shanghai they have a beautiful Bund, with numerous seats. Why should we not have something of the sort here? There they have a garden right on the water's edge, and there the band plays every afternoon.
Similar facilities offer themselves here.
Is the Government now in control of the Colony too slow to seize upon them, or is it that they do not possess a 'bump' of aestheticism and imagine that other people are afflicted with a similar unfortunate omission? It is certainly time that they demonstrated, at all events, that they have the same regard for the comfort and pleasure of the citizens as the Municipal Council at Shanghai. This matter is one that should also be brought before the new Governor. And while citizens are at it they would do well to raise all their grievances and place them before Sir Matthew before he has time to succumb to the influence of the late Government. His Excellency might come here as a veritable Deliverer. We want one badly, indeed.

In another column a LET THE correspondent raises a PUBLIC MOVE, suggestion which should commend itself to all who are at present, or who have been, suffering from the tyranny of servants and to all those who have, from time to time, made abortive attempts to induce the Government to pass a law compelling the registration of all servants in the Colony. Only recently the ladies made a brave effort to bring about the desired result, but their effort was futile. It was rendered futile because the Officer Administering the Government could not see his way clear to enact legislation which previous Governments had—for some inexplicable reason—jibbed at.
That Mr May is in sympathy with the idea, is generally accepted publicly as a fact, and it is further believed that once the new Governor arrives Mr May will assist in getting a measure placed upon the statutes which will meet the wishes of the long-suffering agitators. It is not advisable to trust to Mr May doing that, however, but it is advisable to work the question up, and, at a public meeting the convening of which our correspondent suggests—call upon the new Governor to mark his arrival in the Colony by doing something to ameliorate the condition of the residents. A public meeting would go a long way towards impressing Sir Matthew Nathan with the importance of the question, and if a petition is backed up by the Chamber of Commerce and all the prominent citizens he must feel himself duty bound to do something. This is the real opportunity for sympathisers to make a bold demand for the legislation they desire, and it is also the opportunity for the new Governor to earn the lifelong gratitude of the citizens. It is a decided pity that Mr May goes out of office without having done something to settle the serious difficulty. By acquiescing in the recent demands of his fair petitioners he would have perpetuated his name in the Colony.

Notes by the Way.
Kuropatkin's next retreat will be a harbinger of defeat.

Mr Thomas Luff Perkins has been added to the list of Authorised Architects in the Colony.

Messrs D. McHardy, W. Cameron, W. Robertson and A. Gordon have been appointed Sanitary Inspectors.

Police Sergeant Gordon, now at Sham-

Drugs Ordinance.

Machine Gun practice will be carried out by the Military on the southern slopes of Lion Hill from July 11 to July 16, both days inclusive, between 6 a.m. and 9 a.m.

In a strictly mathematical way the Japanese are proceeding with the war.
They divide the enemy, multiply their own forces, and now they propose to reduce Port Arthur.

Dr. Arthur Frost Forster, Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, London, and a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, has been added to the list of persons qualified to practise medicine and surgery in Hongkong.

The Hotel America.
A meeting of H. M.'s Justices of Peace will be held on Tuesday, July 12, to consider an application from Mr F. Nolte for the transfer of his adjutant license for the Hotel America to Jose F. Saavedra.

The Cathedral Organ.
The organ at St. John's Cathedral has been thoroughly tuned and repaired and will, we understand, be heard at tomorrow's service. On Tuesday afternoon next, Mr A. G. Ward announces that he will give an organ recital, which is certain to be well attended. The soloist will be Mr W. E. Schmidt.

The Metropole Theatre.
Messrs Ware and Ross' Entertainers will give a performance at the Metropole Theatre to-night. A full change of programme is announced, and the prospect of a good night's amusement, coupled with a delightful riskless ride along the waterfront should entice a large number of people out.
With such succeeding performance the entertainers are making a better impression.

Meteorological Return.
The meteorological return for the month of June shows that the maximum temperature reached was 91.1 on June 26, while the minimum was 72.1 on June 1.
During the month we had 162.1 hours of sunshine, and 19.64 inches of rain fell. On June 29 the rainfall was 5.19 inches, and on June 30, 3.26 inches. During the last three days of the month almost 11 inches of rain fell.

GOD SAVE THE KING.

'Poor Dogs get the Bone.' Conversation on board a 22 emigrant ship:—'We are on board,' he said, 'It is good, it is very good. Fourteen long hours I have waited, and now I am here. I am done with England. A land of liberty?
Pah! a land of tyranny and damnation. I have starved in it, and sweated in it, and been trodden into the mire of it. Yonder is America, where you and I, my friend, may find good gold. Ha! ha! All the way to New York for £2. It is very good.
It is excellent. I could laugh until my ribs crack! These ship companies are fighting each other, and we poor dogs get the bone. It is a joke; a good joke!'

'The East of Asia.'
The title of the current issue of the East of Asia indicates that it is different from its predecessors in two regards.
Firstly, it is devoted exclusively to the methods of education at present in vogue in China. Secondly, it is intended for circulation in the United States only, and is prepared with a view to the St. Louis Exhibition. The usual issue has been deferred, in order that the Editor and Publishers might devote their attention to this, and it must be admitted that the results are in every way gratifying. It may be predicted that a wider acquaintance with this excellent magazine, thus published at this opportune moment, will lead to a wider circulation.

the Ministers have decided that, on the fall of Port Arthur and the evacuation of Liao-

ATTACK ON TAIHO.

A Band of Robbers.

Just as the Chinese residents of the village of Taiho were about to commence their day's labour on the 8th party of Chinese landed on the Island of Lantau near the village, boarded a junk, and demanded the junk occupants to hand over their valuables.

Numbers being in favour of the marauders the fishermen had nothing to do but to comply with the demand, and everything portable of any value was collected by the gang and taken away. The high-handed proceedings of the robbers naturally had the effect of terrifying the natives, who were afraid to make an outcry for fear of being roughly handled by the band. Consequently, the gang were permitted to secure their booty and depart in peace.

Had the robbers been content with what they had secured all might have been well as far as they were concerned, but the demon of avarice had taken possession of them, and they repaired to another boat, intending to repeat their performance there. In this boat, however, there chanced to be a China man who had a greater amount of pluck than his fellow-countrymen, and he made his escape from the boat and communicated with the Taiho Police Station.

Sergeant Floyd, who is in charge of the Station, collected a number of Indian constables and giving them the necessary arms and instructions, led them down to the village. Among the number was Police Constable 610, Bhan Singh, and during the melee that followed, he received several severe blows on the head, which rendered him hors de combat.

The gang attempted to escape when they saw the police coming, but four of them were captured. The police had little trouble in effecting the capture of the four men, but the remainder fled over the hills and were soon lost to sight.

The four men arrested—Ho Ma Ki, Kwok Yik Tai, Cheung Po and Tung Yik —were conveyed to Hongkong in a steam launch and taken to the Magistracy. They were brought before the Magistrate yesterday on a charge of demanding money by intimidation, and His Worship remanded the case until July 14 to allow of the charge being amended.

Bhan Singh was conveyed to the Government Civil Hospital suffering from scalp wounds, but he is not in a serious condition.

TROUBLE IN THE WEST.

SOMALILAND AGAIN THREATENING.

French Officers Killed.

LONDON, July 8.
Reuter's correspondent at Aden telegraphs that the tribes in the Hin-terland are again threatening.

The troops are being advanced to meet the natives.

A number of natives attacked a party of French officers on the Jibutit railway, killing four of them.

[The trouble in British Somaliland has been of long duration, and although only one of England's 'little wars,' the death roll has been high and the money spent enormous. Somaliland is a British Protectorate on the Western side of the Gulf of Aden. The chief towns are Berbera (the capital), Zeyla and Bulhar, all of which are garrisoned by British Officers and Indian troops.]

Adding the British Protectorate is the French Protectorate and the colony of Obock. The French possessions extend from Cape Gumir to Cape Dumouira, a distance of 123 miles. Jibutit, or Djibouti is the capital, and has a population of 15,000, of which 2,500 are Europeans. A railway from Jibutit to Harar in Abyssinia is under construction, and it was probably on this line that the four French Officers were killed.—Ed., C.M.

POLITICS IN U. S. A.

AMERICAN INTERESTS IN THE PACIFIC.

LONDON, July 8.
Mr John Hay, U. S. Secretary for War, was present at the celebration held on the fiftieth anniversary of the birth of the Republican Party in America.

In a speech he said that the diplomacy of Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt was directed principally to the protection of American interests in the Pacific.

They constantly kept in view the vast importance of that opening field of activities.

LONDON, July 7.

WARNER.

The ladies of Samoa had suddenly become keen players of bridge, and Mr. Brown-Brown, whose husband had gone up-country, achieved great distinction by giving a series of little menial dinners of four with cards to follow.

And so it came to pass that, at breakfast one morning, Binks, Jinks and I were each informed by our respective wives that we need not come back to dinner that night unless we were particularly keen on dining alone. The three of us foregathered at eleven o'clock and compared notes.

"We'll dine at the Club," I said.

"We'll have a double magnum," said Binks.

"And we won't confine ourselves to one glass of port afterwards," said Jinks, whose better-half always keeps her eye on him when the wine is passed round the second time.

"We'd better invite a fourth man to dine with us so as to make a parti cardé," said Binks, whose wife speaks French as a Frenchman does not.

"Agreed," I said; "only let's get a married man for preference. We needn't fix our man yet; there'll be heaps of people in the Club to-night; we'll decide then whom to ask." On this understanding we went back to our offices with light hearts.

But when we got to the Club that evening there was a slight disappointment in store for us. Not a single married man was thoroughly had the "terrible" thought of marriage "cowed" the manhood of Samoa; had the courage to accept our invitation. It was the same old story in every case.

"It's awfully good of you to ask me, old chap, and I should be fully like to stop if you'd given me a day's notice. I think I could have worked it, but I simply dare not send a note now. I'm not coming home to dinner."

By common consent we therefore looked the bulky Dowton, bachelor, comic and lioniser. He at once accepted. It was a most pleasant and excellent dinner and we took our time over it. Binks, Jinks and I thoroughly enjoyed the novel sensation of being allowed to talk freely in our own homes over our wives' heads at all the talking.

Dowton, who as a rule has an unlimited number of funny stories to tell, confined himself to eating, drinking and listening. After dinner the wine circulated freely, and the tongues of Binks, Jinks and myself wagged still more freely and I am afraid we gave ourselves away very badly. Finally Binks got so far in front of himself that he pulled him up with, "But surely we ought not to discuss domestic detail before Dowton; he's not a married man."

"Don't mind me," said Dowton; "I'm very much interested." But we discreetly refrained from interesting him any more, and, in order to change the subject, one of us asked him why he had never become married. With a comprehensive wink he replied: "Fools step in where angels fear to tread." Binks, Jinks and I went off into raptures of laughter; the idea of Dowton—red-nosed and pot-bellied—comparing himself to an angel was too funny for words.

Then, as the full significance of the saying gradually dawned upon us, the laughter died away from our faces. Binks, Jinks and I may be fools, but we do not like to be so called to our faces by any man, least of all at our own table by a guest whom we have been doing particularly proudly. My wrath was the first to find expression, and I burst forth with, "You hesitated, you Caliban! If you were the only man left on the face of the earth I don't believe you could get even a negress to marry you—so you needn't talk."

"I grant you," said Dowton, "that a good deal of my beauty has faded away, but I don't mind telling you that I was at one time engaged to marry the prettiest girl in six counties."

"I don't believe it," said Binks and Jinks in chorus.

"Tell us about it," said I.

"I don't mind if I do," said Dowton, "but—well talking's rather dry work, isn't it?" I immediately acted on the hint.

"It is now many years ago," went on Dowton, "and in those days I was rather a good-looking chap;—Binks, if you could only realize that I'm telling the tragedy of my life for your edification, perhaps you might suppress that insidious grin by Jingo! If I catch you grinning again before I finish, I'll tell that story about your wife's petticoats at the bar of the Club to-morrow."

Binks, Jinks and I at once became as serious as judges, and Dowton resumed.

"Her name was Lucy; I had known her since she was a child and I became engaged to her while I was still up at Cambridge. The way in which the engagement was broken off will probably amuse you; it nearly drove me mad at the time, and even now I think I should trust a cobra before I should trust a woman."

"I came home for the Christmas vacation and lost no time in seeing Lucy. I found that a skating party had been arranged for the next day and that eight of us, conveniently divided into four couples, were to walk to the lake about four miles away. We met in the afternoon at the starting-place and found that the new curate had invited himself to accompany us. This would not have mattered so much, but for the fact that he stuck like a limpet to Lucy and myself all the way out. There were three other couples on whom he might have inflicted himself, but he was too dense to see my very broad hints. I told you just now that Lucy was the prettiest girl in six counties; I'm prepared to bet all I'm worth that if you'd seen her on that perfect winter afternoon with the full glow of health in her cheeks you would have sworn that she was the most beautiful girl you had ever seen in all your life. For two miles I did nothing but gaze at her; conversation of the kind I wanted to indulge in was impossible because of the presence of a third party. Then I began to think how happy we should be if this infernal curate would only take himself off. And what a miserable specimen of the human race he was when you compared him with me!

"He was five foot one and consumptive-looking; I was six foot three and a football player. He came from Durham, which he referred to as 'The Varsity'; my tie showed that I belonged to the best College in Cambridge."

"He wore collared cuffs and collar, his black clothes were green and badly made; my linen was spotless and beyond reproach, my Norfolk jacket had leather at the shoulders, my knickerbockers were finished off at the ends with box-cloth, while my nether extremities were encased in 'apats' that showed off the symmetry of my legs."

"His face was overgrown with a ragged beard; mine was smooth and clean-shaven except for a silky virgin moustache that had never yet felt the touch of razor."

"He sucked an occasional cough lozenge; I smoked the finest Havana cigars that tickled my throat."

"As I looked at him I thought, 'You're not much to look at, but I suppose even a poor woman like you will think all the world of you and imagine you a hero and put you up on a pedestal and adore and worship you.'"

"When we arrived at the lake we found that the curate did not skate but that he was very fond of 'sliding.' Lucy and I got our skates on and at once vanished to the other end of the lake where we skated and rested alternately. It was moonlight when we started to walk back. I told Lucy that if the curate fastened himself on to us on the way back I should murder him. When, however, we did start and found that the curate was going to walk with us, I felt in much too happy a mood to contemplate murder; in fact, I rather pitied him. It was a glorious evening; the moon was one big ball of silver, the air was so clear and calm that you can twice as many stars as you generally do; the earth was crisp and crystal underneath and the sound of our footsteps reverberated in the stillness of the trees and hedges were one blaze of jewels and—well, Lucy had taken off one glove and put her hand in mine. An ecstatic thrill of happiness ran through my whole frame, and I felt it would be sinful to make any attempt at conversation—the whole world seemed so beautifully still and all that I wanted to say could be more quickly communicated by increasing the pressure of the hand."

"But Lucy, out of pure kindness of heart, spoke now and then to the curate, while I felt so happy and generous that, out of pity at his being so much out of it as it were, I addressed a few polite remarks to him. After a time I noticed that the curate was carrying something in the hand farthest away from me and on looking carefully I saw that it was Lucy's other glove. Then I made the amazing discovery that he was also holding Jinks's other hand and must have been doing so all the way. The little witch had been returning the pressure on both sides and had been doing so for over an hour. I dropped the hand I held, folded my arms and said Goodnight at the first cross road we came to, and never saw the lady again. Shortly after this I came out in Samoa where I have been ever since."

"Did she marry the curate?" asked Jinks.

"Oh yes, she married the blighter about a month afterwards and told everybody that he did not improve on closer acquaintance. However, she is now a mother of eight and probably, like myself, has lost a good deal of her beauty, that's all; I hope I haven't bored you fellows. Shall we have a 'drochanderie'?"

I drove home with Jinks and on the way asked him if he thought Dowton's story was a true one. "I don't know," said Jinks. "He may tell the truth occasionally when he's drunk; but I know he's a most infernal liar when he's sober."

The launch of the China Navigation Company's new steamer Shanghai, which is being built at the Kowloon Dock has been definitely fixed for Thursday morning next at about half past eight o'clock. The new boat is intended for the Yangtze River trade and is being constructed on much the same lines as the steamer Tuck W., which recently passed through this port on her way to the Yangtze. On being launched the Shanghai will be taken alongside of the Dock Company's large shear-legs and will have her engines fitted. The engines are at present in the machine shop at the Dock where the final touches are being put on them.

BY WHARF AND WAVE.

■ H. M. S. Sirius left Singapore for Penang on July 2. She will be away about fifteen days.

After having undergone an overhauling the China Navigation Company's steamer Taiyuan left the Kowloon Dock this morning.

At ten o'clock to-day the French mail steamer Oceanic left Saigon for Hongkong. She will probably be here on Tuesday.

Another typhoon is hovering about. At ten o'clock this morning Manila Observatory reported that it was in the Pacific, north-east of Manila.

The British steamer Clam, which got into port yesterday afternoon with bulk oil, burns oil fuel. We understand that she is one of the pioneer oil burners.

The Wilson liner Ohio has been sold to Japan for about £12,000. The vessel it is stated, will take coal to Hongkong, and then be handed over to the Japanese.

The master of the L. M. Customs launch Kaoloon Chi, Alex. Shellbold, was fined $3 at the Harbour Master's Office yesterday for neglecting to observe the Rules of the Road.

It is reported that the steamer Algonia after leaving Moji on her last voyage was stranded for over an hour in the Shimoda-Saki Straits, prior to being wrecked at Tongmi Point.

Orders have been placed by the French Government with the Forges et Chantiers de la Méditerranée for the construction of four floating docks, one of which is intended for Saigon.

Dr A. F. Forster has been appointed Deputy Health Officer of the Port, vice Dr Robert Gibson, for so long as he continues in partnership with Dr G. P. Jordan, or until further notice.

A proclamation is published, under the authority of the Chinese Passengers Act, in the current issue of the Government Gazette, detailing the medicines and medical comforts to be carried on ships in the Chinese passenger traffic.

That the harbour is growing shallower with each year is manifest from the amount of mud stirred up by steamers when they reverse engines. As the P. and O. Borneo came in to-day and began to go astern near Kowloon yards round the water was disclosed. We believe, however, that one of the schemes of the Harbour Master is to have the harbour dredged.

A notification appears in the Government Gazette to the effect that foreign men-of-war shall not make any examination or survey of the shores or waters of the Colony, other than such ships or by means of boat or otherwise. Foreign soldiers and sailors shall not be landed in the Colony from any vessel without the permission of the Governor obtained through the Consul or Officer of the country to which such soldiers or sailors belong.

The Messageries Maritimes Cie have purchased from the Compagnie Française Cie, the four cargo boats Annam, Yunnan, Kwang Si, and the Leas. Owing to the first-named cargo boat being called the Annam, the French mail boat Annam has been re-named Taiyuan. The M. M. Cie. are having three new ships built for their Eastern trade at the La Ciotat yards. They are all sister cargo boats of 9,000 tons. They are: Lanyon, which will be launched in a month or two, and the El Kartata and the Euphrate Gange, both of which will be launched next year.

The boiler plates for the Shanghai had to be specially imported by the Dock Company from England already bent and ready for riveting. The plates are one and a half inches thick and at the time when they were ordered there was not a machine in the Colony capable of bending them. With the Dock Company's new electrical plant a difficulty such as that will not be likely to occur again, as the powerful new rolling plant that has just been fitted up with electrical power at the Dock will be able to deal with plates of even greater thickness than those required for the new boilers.

Glen line steamer Umburri got away from Foochow very nearly about the same time. The Prometheus left on June 11 and went direct to Singapore. She left that port on June 17, and Port Said on July 5—making 24 days from Foochow to the Canal. The Umburri got away from Singapore on the same day as the Prometheus, but she was beaten to the Canal evidently, for she did not leave Port Said until the 8th. The passage of the Prometheus is a very rapid one and if she keeps up the speed she should do the whole journey in 33 days—better than mail steamer time.

The American herring catcher, A. M. Nicholas, of Bucksport, Maine, after having been adrift in an ice floe all the winter, sailed safely into Bonne Bay (Newfoundland) on June 1. The Nicholas was abandoned her on Jan. 29 and made their way over the ice to the mainland near the Bay of St. George. Five Newfoundland fishermen boarded the vessel on April 5th, 40 miles from Bonne Bay, and after a trying experience of 57 days, four of the fishermen brought her into port, the fifth, having grown weary of the close confinement, left the vessel on May 25th, and walked across the ice toward Portland Channel. He has not been heard from since. The fishermen had very little to eat. They lived most of the time on bread and water and four boiled in a ventilator cover, the only thing left on board that could be utilized for cooking. They arrived in Bonne Bay weak and exhausted.

The American herring catcher, A. M. Nicholas, of Bucksport, Maine, after having been adrift in an ice floe all the winter, sailed safely into Bonne Bay (Newfoundland) on June 1. The Nicholas was abandoned her on Jan. 29 and made their way over the ice to the mainland near the Bay of St. George. Five Newfoundland fishermen boarded the vessel on April 5th, 40 miles from Bonne Bay, and after a trying experience of 57 days, four of the fishermen brought her into port, the fifth, having grown weary of the close confinement, left the vessel on May 25th, and walked across the ice toward Portland Channel. He has not been heard from since. The fishermen had very little to eat.
